

MPhil in African Studies

Application deadline 30 June 2013

"Bridge Life" Ikoyi, Lagos, Nigeria, 2009 © Luke Robinson

The MPhil in African Studies is a postgraduate course with a substantial research component, which runs for nine months through the Cambridge academic year.

It is designed for students wishing to enhance their historical and contemporary understanding of Africa's societies, politics, economies, and cultures, as well as for those who wish to advance to further study. The MPhil thus offers a distinctive postgraduate qualification in its own right, along with intensive research and language training for students wishing to apply for PhD programmes.

For more information, please contact: mphil@african.cam.ac.uk

Or visit www.african.cam.ac.uk to download a prospectus and apply for the course.